Anthem in Maine and New Hampshire needed to transition their Individual Market product support to the Center of Excellence in Connecticut. This transition – and the ongoing support – required that the associates at the Center of Excellence in Connecticut be knowledgeable about the tasks required to enroll, bill, and install individual members from the three states. While it was clear that training was integral to the success of the transition, it was equally clear that training and ongoing support relied on thorough and accurate documentation of job processes and tasks to ensure that associates had the capability to consistently and accurately enroll, bill, and install individual members.

Because of the enormity of effort in this transition, Anthem's training team called on Entelechy to provide documentation support.

Challenge: Understanding the inner workings of processes as complex and rule-rich as health insurance can be daunting. And extracting from employees "what they do" requires precision, patience, and expertise.

At the same time, Anthem realized that the business advantages of having a single call center for Individual Markets would significantly streamline operations, save money, and increase effectiveness.

Solution: Entelechy worked closely with the Anthem Individual Market teams in Maine and New Hampshire to better understand the Individual Market (IM) products, specifically Blue Direct and Temporary (Short-Term) Insurance Products. We then used Subject Matter Expert (SME) interviews and observation to identify the workflows and desk procedures for Individual Market enrollment, billing, and installation.

We then documented the workflows and created desk procedures for Blue Direct enrollment, billing, and installation. Using the newly-created workflows and desk procedures from Blue Direct, we modified the workflows and desk procedures as necessary in support of Temporary product enrollment, billing and installation functions.

Using the newly-created workflows and desk procedures from Blue Direct, modify the workflows and desk procedures in support of Medicomp product billing.

All told, Entelechy created or modified approximately 50 workflows and desk procedures for Anthem. Additionally, where appropriate, Entelechy created desktop procedure job aids for employees to follow when performing a task (such as adding a member or updating an address).

Results: As a result of a clear set of work processes and support tools, Anthem was able to transition the work to the Center of Excellence in Connecticut and free up the New Hampshire and Maine call centers from this work.

The documentation created by Entelechy served as the basis for training and on-the-job support, and became part of the online library used by customer service representatives in the performance of their job.

Without Entelechy's involvement, Anthem would not have been able to complete this work within the timeframes outlined in their business strategy, resulting in significant impact on that strategy.
